Ciliary muscles, L

The ciliary body is located in the anterior portion of the eye. It extends from the ora serrata, which is the jagged margin of the retina, to a point posterior to the sclero-corneal junction. Ciliary processes are folds on the internal surface of the ciliary body. They are arranged in a circle, and form a frill behind the iris, around the margin of the lens. These protrusions include the pars plana, located near the point where the iris and the sclera connect, and the pars plicata, located anterior to the pars plana. Zonular fibers extend from the ciliary processes and attach to the lens. The ciliary processes secrete aqueous humor. The ciliary muscle changes the tensions of the zonular fibers, adapting the lens for near or far vision.
